Membership Information

Under the Federal Labeling of Hazardous Art Materials Act, Public Law 100-695 (LHAMA), all art material manufacturers who sell products in the U.S. must have their products evaluated by a qualified toxicologist and labeled, if necessary, for chronic toxicity according to the chronic hazard labeling standard, ASTM D-4236. LHAMA, which went into effect in November 1990, amends the Federal Hazardous Substances Act (FHSA) to require art and craft material manufacturers to evaluate their products for their ability to cause chronic illness and to place labels on those products that do. These labels provide health and cautionary information and safe use instructions. FHSA already required manufacturers to evaluate and label for acute toxicity. Membership in The Art & Creative Materials Institute, Inc. (ACMI) ensures compliance to LHAMA, as well as to individual state art materials labeling laws. If you are a manufacturer, you are eligible for ACMI membership. Listed below are a few of the benefits of becoming a member of ACMI.

- Independent toxicologist evaluation of your products to comply with Federal and state labeling laws, as well as on-going toxicological review of all formulations to ensure that this Information is current.
- Review of and advice on proposed formula changes and the availability of new ingredients.
- A computer program that allows pre-screening of formulations and formula changes using lists of ingredients evaluated by the toxicologist. A data-entry-only version of this program is also available.
- Use of recognized certification seals on products (shown on front cover of this booklet).
- Promotion of ACMI seals and approved products through distribution of brochures and ACMI-approved products lists to artists, art educators, other users, and the public.
- Attempts to defeat, amend or pass suitable state or Federal legislation regarding labeling of art materials, sales to schools, and many other issues affecting ACMI members and their products.
- Representation with Federal government agencies and state departments responsible for administering regulations affecting ACMI members.
- The monthly newsletter, Institute Items, which keeps members up-to-date on important issues that affect the industry and keeps members informed about upcoming meetings and events.
- Liaison with other industry organizations.

If you would like more information on joining ACMI, please contact: Becky Beaudoin, Membership Director (beckyl@acminet.org) or call (781) 293-4100
